CASE STUDY

rewire

Problem

Rewire makes cross-border money transfers easier for migrants by providing great rates, fast delivery, and multilingual customer support.

As a Fintech company in the European Union, they're obligated to abide by regulations like the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and other licensing requirements but Rewire wanted to go beyond regulations to protect the interests and sensitive data of their clients and stakeholders with top-tier security.

Solution

We started by verifying total compliance with GDPR and other regulations related to their license to manage sensitive data. Once compliance was established, we began a review of their security system design. This allowed us to address each element of the system with customized penetration testing (PT) attack vectors. This approach provided Rewire with a more thorough penetration test and a comprehensive report that can be used to reassure clients and stakeholders. Thanks to our holistic methods, Rewire feels that we see the big picture and that they can rely on our long-term support.

Results

Rewire is now licensed to deliver its exceptional services internationally and has successfully passed all due diligence related to security. New tech and business partners who have received Rewire's procedures and reports, including the GRSee Consulting PT report, have been satisfied and confident in their ability to maintain client data safety, securely serve their clients, and continue growing.
